UNSW Institute of Languages IELTS Test Centre Celebrates its first year of success!

Over the past year, the UNSW Institute of Languages has successfully tested over 6,000 candidates. In response to this strong demand the Institute of Languages has increased its capacity by almost 30%.

As the Federal Government updates its General Skilled Migration Program, and as the British Government adopts similar requirements for immigration, this strong demand is likely to continue to grow into 2009.

In the past twelve months, over one million people have been tested under IELTS world-wide, an increase of 10% over the previous year.

The importance and acceptance of IELTS as an assessment of English language ability is recognised by over 5,000 educational institutions, professional organisations and government agencies and this number is also growing rapidly.

In New South Wales, there is often a two-month delay in booking a test.

In addition to being a test centre, the UNSW Institute of Languages also offers part time courses in IELTS General Test Preparation and Practice Writing for IELTS Academic Test.
